Ever get that feeling like when you're going through something really tough, and it feels like someone's got your back, almost

J John 00:04
like you're being watched over exactly?

S Sarah 00:06
Some might call it luck, others destiny. But what if it's something more? What if it's our guardian angels?

J John 00:14
Today, we're diving deep into the world of guardian angels, specifically through the lens of the Urantia Book.

S Sarah 00:20
This book goes way beyond the typical Angel tropes. Oh, absolutely. This isn't about harps and halos. No winged babies floating around, not at all. The Urantia Book presents a really intriguing perspective on these celestial beings. Okay, so

J John 00:28

S Sarah 00:34
tell me, what does it say? Well,

J John 00:36
it claims that guardian angels are not just the stuff of myths and legends, but actual beings assigned to help us, help us with what to navigate our spiritual evolution. Think of them like cosmic guides here to assist us in our journey of growth.

S Sarah 00:53
So it's not as simple as everyone just automatically getting their own guardian angel right. Catch

J John 00:58
it on quickly. Yeah, the book dives into this idea of different levels of human intellect and spirituality. Okay, so there's like a hierarchy in a way. Yes, it talks about subnormal, normal and supernormal minds. And your placement on this spectrum, it determines the kind of angelic support you receive. So where do most of us fall? I'm guessing that normal category

S Sarah 01:15

J John 01:20
probably right. And even within normal there are seven sub levels. It's like a circle, with each level signifying your progress, progress in what sense, self awareness, self control, your connection to what the Urantia Book calls the indwelling adjuster, this inner divine spark. And the closer you move to the center of that circle, the closer you are to this connection and to receiving personalized angelic assistance.

S Sarah 01:43
So it's like leveling up in a video game. The further you progress, the better your angelic support system. It's

J John 01:49
a fascinating concept, right? It suggests that starting from the seventh level, the ratio is one angel per 1000 mortals. Wow,

S Sarah 01:57
1000 people to one angel. Talk about multitasking, exactly,

J John 02:00
but then as you reach the third circle, things change. That's when you get your own personal destiny. Guardian, Destiny,

S Sarah 02:07
Guardian. That's intense. What does it take to get to that level? What do you have to do to attract your own personal seraphim?

J John 02:14
The Urantia Book lays out three main paths. Okay, I'm intrigued. Lay them on me. First imagine making a conscious decision to embody higher, moral and spiritual values, a real turning point, not necessarily in a religious sense, but a commitment to becoming more godlike, like a soul upgrade you decide to become a better version of yourself. What about the other paths?

S Sarah 02:30

J John 02:36
The second path is more about gradual growth. Remember those levels of awareness we talked about, as you naturally progress through them, refining your character and deepening that connection to the divine, you essentially become more attuned, a beacon for more personalized angelic guidance. So it's about consistency, dedicating yourself to your spiritual journey, whatever that looks like for you, precisely.

S Sarah 02:52

J John 02:57

And finally, there's a third, more mysterious path. Oh, tell me more. This path involves a select group. It's like they're pre selected for unique destinies and are given a personal guardian angel right from the get go. Wow, fascinating.

S Sarah 03:12

It's like some people are born with a specific purpose that requires a higher level of angelic support. Does the book give examples?

J John 03:19

It does. It tells the story of rantawak, the very first Mortal to ever receive a personal guardian angel. Rantawak, the name, has a certain ring to it. What made him so special? Why him? Honestly,

J John 03:31

the book is a bit vague on the specifics. It emphasizes his wisdom, though maybe a deep understanding of life, combined with a yearning for spiritual exploration, are key factors in attracting this personalized guidance that really makes you think, doesn't it? I mean, what qualities do you think might attract such dedicated support? It really shifts your perspective, doesn't it? Like you could attract that kind of attention, but let's say you've tapped into that wisdom, that spiritual awareness, and you've got your own personal seraphim. What's that look like day to day? Are we talking winning lottery tickets here? Well, well,

S Sarah 03:45

J John 04:04

I wouldn't rule anything out entirely. The Orion Chia book doesn't exactly paint that picture, so no magic lamp wishes, not quite it emphasizes that these Seraphim, our guardian angels, aren't there to micromanage our lives or grant us material favors. What do they do? They're more like intermediaries, bridging the gap between the physical world and the spiritual realms. Okay, but

S Sarah 04:26
how does that actually play out in our lives? Think of

J John 04:30
those moral dilemmas we all face, moments where we're trying to align our actions with our highest selves. Those crossroads, right? Exactly. That's where our guardian angels come in. They

S Sarah 04:38
step in and make the decision for us.

J John 04:41
Not at all they respect our free will, but they might give us a little nudge in the right direction, a whisper of guidance.

S Sarah 04:49
It's like they're subtly steering us towards choices that resonate with our soul's growth.

J John 04:54
Precisely, the Urantia Book emphasizes that free will is paramount. That's reassuring,

S Sarah 04:59
so it's. Like we're puppets being controlled by unseen forces.

J John 05:03
Absolutely not. We're always in the driver's seat. They're there for guidance, but the ultimate choice is always ours.

S Sarah 05:09
Okay, I get that. But if we're not always aware of their presence, how do they guide us? That's where it gets really interesting. The book describes guardian angels as mind stimulators, prompting us to consider new perspectives. So how do they do that? Well, they might orchestrate our environment, placing us in specific situations or bringing certain people into our lives.

John 05:14

Sarah 05:30

You're saying they're cosmic matchmakers, in a way. Yes, orchestrating

John 05:35

those chance encounters, those serendipitous moments, that can have a profound impact on our spiritual journeys.

Sarah 05:41

It's like they're weaving a tapestry with us as the central thread. Have you ever felt that like looking back and seeing how certain events, certain people, seemingly random at the time, led you exactly where you needed to be? Many times that might be your guardian angel at work, though, the Urantia Book does suggest that we're often blissfully unaware of their presence, at least while we're here on Earth, interesting. So while we're caught up in the day to day, these unseen forces are working behind the scenes, nudging us towards our higher selves. That's both amazing and a little unnerving. How can we be sure their influence doesn't cross a line? How do we know how much of our path is truly our own?

John 05:53

Sarah 06:03

John 06:21

That's a great question and a valid concern, but remember, the Urantia Book is very clear about the importance of free will. Our guardian angels can't force us to do anything we don't want to do. They can present us with opportunities, but the choice is ultimately ours.

Sarah 06:34

So it's a delicate dance, this partnership between our own will and their guidance. But it's not like a contract that ends when we die, right? There are hints that this connection extends into the afterlife. It's like you read my mind, this relationship, this bond. It's not just earthly, is it not? According to the Urantia Book, it hints at something far more enduring.

John 06:51

Sarah 06:55

So what happens when we transition when we die? What does it say about our guardian angels?

John 07:01

Well, it suggests that our guardian angels become the custodians of our souls. Wow, our souls are entrusted to them as we navigate the afterlife. That's a beautiful thought.

Sarah 07:05

John 07:10

It's a concept that's resonated with many, this idea that the angel who journeyed with us, who witnessed our lives, doesn't just disappear, right?

Sarah 07:18

They're there to guide us through those experiences to help us make sense of it all

John 07:22

precisely. It speaks to a level of care and guidance that extends far beyond our earthly understanding of life and death. This isn't just a temporary assignment for them, is it? This is a deep, enduring connection that seems

Sarah 07:29

John 07:35

 John 07:35
to be the implication, and it challenges us to think about our connection to the spiritual realm in a much broader sense, it's humbling, isn't it, to think that we might be a part of something so much grander, so beautifully complex. It really is, and perhaps within that complexity, there's also a sense of peace, knowing that even in those moments when we feel most alone, there's a guiding hand, a celestial companion walking beside us. This has been an incredible exploration into the world of guardian angels. Wouldn't you say?

 Sarah 07:43

 John 07:49

 Sarah 08:01
Absolutely,

 John 08:06
the Urantia Book offers a unique and thought provoking perspective on their role in our lives and beyond. It

 Sarah 08:11
certainly makes you think and maybe, just maybe, it encourages us to listen a little closer to those whispers of intuition, to those nudges we feel, knowing that they might be coming from a place of profound love and guidance, until next time, keep exploring those whispers and keep seeking those answers.
