S Sarah 00:00
Welcome back, deep divers. Get ready, because we're about to launch ourselves into a cosmology that's truly expansive. And let me tell you, it's jam packed with more beings than you can shake a cosmic stick at.

J John 00:12
We're diving deep into the Urantia Book, folks. But this isn't your average astronomy lesson. Oh, absolutely

S Sarah 00:17
not. We're talking about a whole universe filled with an incredible diversity of beings, and forget your usual suspects. We're going way beyond different species here. Think more along the lines of entities with origins, powers and roles that are so diverse. I mean, it makes your average sci fi epic look like a small town parade.

J John 00:26

S Sarah 00:35
I'm already getting a serious case of cosmic curiosity. So how does the Urantia Book even begin to make sense of all this. How do we tell the cosmic players apart?

John 00:44

Well, it all starts with a fascinating classification system. You see in the Urantia Book, beings are organized based on their origin in relation to the divine. Okay, so not just humans evolved from apes, but something a bit more, shall we say, celestial Exactly.

Sarah 00:53

John 01:00

It's almost like a giant cosmic family tree, tracing lineage back to the source of all creation. And by understanding their origins, we start to unlock clues about their power, their purpose in the grand scheme of things.

Sarah 01:14

It's like a cosmic game of who's who, but instead of social connections, we're unraveling divine relationships. I'm hooked already. Tell me more. Well, the Urantia Book breaks it down into three primary categories, beings with a triune origin, those with a dual origin and those with a single origin.

John 01:22

Sarah 01:29

Triune origin, dual origin. Okay, my brain's already doing somersaults trying to picture this. Let's start with the basics. Who are these triune origin beings?

John 01:38

Picture this, the Father, the Son in the spirit, those big players on the paradise deity team joining forces in a breathtaking act of creation. That's the kind of power we're dealing with here. These beings are like the cosmic architects, if you will. Wow, talk about an all star team. So if the triune origin beings are the architects, who are the foremen, who are the dual origin beings. Think of them as the cosmic management team brought into existence by any two of the paradise deities,

Sarah 01:53

J John 02:01

S Sarah 02:06
so still calling the shots, but maybe on a slightly smaller scale, you could

J John 02:11
say that they wield tremendous power, but their focus tends to be a bit more specialized. They each have their own unique domains and responsibilities. Got it like department heads in the grand cosmic Corporation, which leaves us with the single origin beings. Who are they? What sets them apart?

S Sarah 02:20

J John 02:27
These intriguing entities were brought into being by a single deity. And while they may have a single origin, their impact on the universe is anything but

S Sarah 02:37
Okay, so we've got our cosmic org chart laid out, but before we get too lost in the organizational structure. Can we meet some of these fascinating characters? I mean, who are the movers and shakers in this cosmic dance? Let's start with those triune origin beings, specifically a group known as the stationary SONS OF THE TRINITY. Names alone, right? Stationary

J John 02:48

S Sarah 02:56
sons of the Trinity, okay, even their title sounds like something out of a prophecy. Who are these mysterious figures we're talking about, beings with titles like the fatefals of days and the perfectors of wisdom. Just let those names sink in for a moment. I'm getting chills already. I mean, those names just ooze ancient wisdom and might but what do they actually do? What's their role in this grand, cosmic play? Their precise function is, well, let's just say it remains shrouded in a bit of mystery. It's like the uranchi book is giving us a tantalizing peek into something that's almost beyond our current comprehension. Okay, now I'm really intrigued. It's like they're the keepers of secrets too big for us to handle just yet. But speaking of beings with mysterious roles, what about those dual origin beings. Can we meet some of them?

John 03:03

Sarah 03:11

John 03:19

Sarah 03:31

John 03:43

Now we're moving into some more familiar territory. Remember the melchizedeks? Wait?

Sarah 03:47

Melchizedeks, like those figures from religious texts, the ones who always seem to be popping up at pivotal moments,

John 03:54

the very same but while other traditions might focus on their role as priests or kings, the Urantia Book really expands their portfolio, so they're not just making guest appearances anymore. What are they up to in this grand cosmic scheme? Think

Sarah 04:02

John 04:03

J John 04:08
of them as cosmic administrators, educators, even judges. They're the ones keeping the wheels of Destiny turning.

S Sarah 04:15
Wow. Talk about wearing many hats. So they're the ones making sure everything runs smoothly. And what about those Archangels? They always seem to show up when big things are about to go down, don't they?

J John 04:25
You've got that right. In the Urantia Book, archangels are depicted as these incredibly powerful messengers carrying out the divine will and playing a key role in the grand narrative of well, pretty much everything. So

S Sarah 04:38
if the melchizedeks are the cosmic administrators keeping everything running smoothly. The Archangels are the ones delivering the big news, the ones making sure those pivotal messages get through. That's one way to put it. Think of them as the heralds of destiny, often appearing at those crucial turning points in a planet's evolution. I mean their presence alone signifies that something monumental. Was about to happen. So we've met the cosmic architects and administrators. But what about the single origin beings? It feels like this is where things might get a bit more personal. Don't you think you're right?

J John 04:49

S Sarah 05:01

J John 05:12
This is where we mortals get to step into the spotlight, at least indirectly. And when we talk about single origin beings, we can't ignore those fascinating entities known as thought adjusters. Thought adjusters, they're one of those concepts that always seem to spark more questions than answers. For me. Can you give us a little refresher on what makes them so special? All right, imagine

S Sarah 05:22

John 05:31

this a fragment of the Universal Father, the source of all creation, residing within your mind. Wait, hold on, we're not talking metaphorically here. Nope, not a metaphor.

Sarah 05:38

John 05:41

We're talking about an actual fragment of the Universal Father existing within your consciousness, guiding you from within. That's a thought adjuster.

Sarah 05:48

Okay, now that's a pretty mind blowing concept. So there's a part of the source of everything residing within each and every one of us. You got it, and that right there speaks to the incredible interconnectedness that lies at the very heart of this cosmology. We're not just observing this universe from a distance. We are active participants woven into the very fabric of existence, and our thought adjusters are our guides on this wild cosmic journey. But where exactly does that journey lead us? What happens after we leave behind this mortal coil, so to speak on that's where things get really interesting. The arantia book lays out a path of progression for us mortals, an ascending career, you might call it, and it unfolds over many lifetimes and experiences, an ascending career. So not exactly harp music and pearly Bates, then more like cosmic continuing education, exactly think challenges, triumphs and entirely new levels of understanding that are pretty much beyond our current comprehension. Sign

John 05:55

Sarah 06:10

John 06:20

Sarah 06:32

J John 06:38

S Sarah 06:45
me up. But let's back up a bit. Where does this cosmic curriculum even begin? What happens right after we leave our physical bodies behind?

J John 06:54
Well, first you become what's called a sleeping survivor. A sleeping survivor,

S Sarah 06:58
I have to admit, that doesn't sound nearly as ominous as I imagine. It's not as spooky as it sounds. Think of it as a peaceful slumber while your soul gets ready for the next chapter of its journey.

J John 07:02

S Sarah 07:08
Okay? Sleeping survivor. It is much nicer than some other terms I've heard, but eventually we wake up right where do we find ourselves then on, the mansion worlds. Mansion worlds. Now are we talking sprawling estates, intergalactic buffets, those kinds of mansions, think less about a physical place and more about a state of being. It's where we shed those physical limitations and start to experience what's called morontia life.

J John 07:24

S Sarah 07:34
Merontia life. Okay, that's a new one. It's not every day you hear a term that sounds like it belongs in a physics lecture and a discussion about the afterlife. So what is mirantia life? Exactly?

- J John 07:45
Think of it as a fusion, a blending of the material and the spiritual. It's a state of existence where thoughts can begin to shape reality.
- S Sarah 07:53
Okay, I'm definitely getting some serious lucid dreaming vibes here, but like on a cosmic scale, you're getting warmer,
- J John 08:00
and this is where we begin our journey as morontia Progressors. We're learning, we're growing. We're exploring this new state of being.
- S Sarah 08:07
Sounds fascinating, but it's still early in our cosmic careers. At this point, right? What comes after our mansion world orientation? Well,
- J John 08:15
as we continue our cosmic education, we transition from being mansion world students to becoming super universe. Wards, super universe wards, does this mean? What I think it means.
- S Sarah 08:22
- J John 08:26
It means we're entrusted to the care of some pretty high ranking beings, the ancients of days,
- S Sarah 08:31
the ancients of days, those names always send chills down my spine. What's it like being under their wing? Well,
- J John 08:37
imagine this. These beings oversee entire super universes, realms teeming with more life and wonders than we can even begin to imagine. To be a super universe, Ward is to be guided toward the very heart of creation.

 Sarah 08:51

Okay, so we've gone from mansion worlds to super universes. Talk about moving up in the world. Is there a super duper universe, too? What's next on this cosmic climb, you could say that the ultimate destination, the peak of this incredible journey, is a place called havona.

 John 09:00

 Sarah 09:06

Havona, just the name sounds otherworldly. Tell me more. What's it like? It's almost impossible to capture the essence of havona. In words, it's the Central Universe, a realm of pure spirit existing outside of space and time as we know them. It's a realm of unimaginable beauty, perfect harmony, where we shed the last remnants of our material existence and merge with our true spiritual selves. So we've journeyed from sleeping survivors all the way to havona, a realm of pure spirit. It's a mind blowing transformation to even think about, but is that it is havona The final destination. Do we just park ourselves in this paradise of perfection and call it a day? Well, the journey continues, but it takes on a different quality. In hivona, it's less about climbing through levels and more about exploring the infinite depths of our being. Okay, I think I get you. It's like we've been so focused on reaching the summit of this cosmic. Mountain. But now that we're here, we can finally take in the view, but a view this fast has got to take a while to absorb. What exactly do we do in this state of pure spirit? Imagine

 John 09:11

 Sarah 09:31

 John 09:47

 Sarah 09:55

 John 10:00

J John 10:09
the state of constant learning and discovery, but forget textbooks and lectures in havona. Knowledge is absorbed directly through experience and intuition. Wow.

S Sarah 10:18
It's like the universe is our classroom. So why do we just hang out with other pure spirits, swap stories, compare notes on eternity, we

J John 10:25
commune with other beings of pure spirit, yeah, but we also explore the boundless creativity of the divine mind, delve deeper into the mysteries of the cosmos. Havona is about expanding our understanding of existence itself. Okay,

S Sarah 10:39
that sounds pretty amazing. It's like havona is less a final destination and more the beginning of a limitless journey. But I have to ask, is there anything beyond hivona? Does the cosmic curriculum ever truly end? Well,

J John 10:50
the Urantia Book does hint at an even greater destiny for those who complete the hivona experience, those who achieve paradise. Arrival. Paradise,

S Sarah 10:59
arrival. So are we talking about those mysterious finalities we've

J John 11:02
mentioned before? The very same we join the mortal core of finality, the mortal core of

S Sarah 11:07
finality. That name, I don't know, it just sounds so final. But what do these finalities actually do? And

J John 11:15
that's the real head scratcher, isn't it? The book offers these tantalizing clues about this ultimate stage of being, but ultimately it leaves a lot to the imagination. Classic

S

Sarah 11:24

Urantia move always leaving us wanting more. But seriously, what do we actually know about this final stage? Well, we know it involves some form of essential service to the cosmos. It's like we graduate from the universal Academy and join the ranks of those who actually sustain all of creation. But the exact nature of that work, that's something we're left to ponder.

J

John 11:32

Sarah 11:44

So even after achieving the highest levels of spiritual understanding, there are still mysteries to unravel, adventures to be had. Who knew eternity could be so exciting, exactly?

J

John 11:55

And that sense of wonder, that insatiable curiosity, well, it's something the Urantia Book seems to encourage. Remember those unclassified and unrevealed beings we mentioned earlier. Oh, how could I forget? It's like the book dropped a bombshell and then just moved on. What's the deal with those enigmatic entities? They're a potent reminder that our understanding of the cosmos is far from complete. There are entire categories of beings, entire realms of existence that we haven't even begun to fathom. It's almost like those moments in science fiction when someone stumbles upon some ancient text. Suddenly there are whispers of lost civilizations, forgotten technologies, and the possibilities just explode exactly and that sense of wonder of infinite possibility that's what the Urantia Book does for exactly and that sense of wonder, of infinite possibility, that's what the Urantia Book does for us, it stretches our awareness, pushes the boundaries of our imagination, invites us to consider a reality far more vast and interconnected than we ever thought possible. Well, we've certainly covered a lot of cosmic ground in this deep dive. We've met beings with powers we can only dream of, peaked into realms beyond space and time, even glimpsed the potential of our own cosmic journey. It's a lot to process, no doubt, but I have to say, I'm feeling incredibly inspired, as you should be, because for all its complexities and mind boggling details, the Urantia Book ultimately points to a very simple but profound truth, yeah, we're all part of something much greater than ourselves, a grand cosmic tapestry woven from an infinite variety of threads, each one essential to the whole. It's a beautiful thought, and one that we can all carry with us, whether or not we embrace every single detail of the Urantia book's cosmology. Absolutely, the universe, as always, is full of surprises. And I for 1am, incredibly excited to see what wonders we uncover next.

S

Sarah 12:05

J

John 12:12

Sarah 12:23

J

John 12:34

Sarah 12:49

J

John 13:05

S

Sarah 13:16

J

John 13:30

S

Sarah 13:37

And there you have it, folks, another deep dive, successfully navigated until next time, keep exploring, keep asking those big questions, and keep your minds open to the infinite possibilities of this incredible Cosmos we call home. You.
